

Why Creation Care?

At the heart of Creation Care is our calling as Christians to love God and love our neighbor in a real, hands-on way. God created this beautiful world and declared it good, and throughout Scripture we see that caring for creation is one way we honor the Creator.

When we protect clean air, safe water, healthy soil, functioning forests, and the green spaces in both urban and rural communities, we're also caring for our neighbors — especially the children, seniors, and vulnerable folks who feel the effects of pollution and extreme weather most.

This is a hopeful, practical ministry each church family can embrace right now.

Whether it's reducing waste, planting native trees and flowers, saving energy, or teaching our kids that God's world is a precious gift worth tending, Creation Care is about living out our faith through everyday actions.

It's not about politics — it's about discipleship, gratitude, and ensuring our community flourishes today and for generations to come.
